The Mission

4 Aug 24

Wyn torn by locking up our Morton Bay Fig as a Bonsai, finally wants action. Breath mists as we enter the forest and bump a roo from the track. I record her singing as she beds the 25-year-old tree into the earth.

We have to become reluctant managers, now so much has been torn up, messed up and disappeared.

Planting, weeding invasives, donations, reparations,
all help mitigate a sense of personal responsibility.
